LINCOLN'S ADDRESS.

Address delivered at the dedication of the Cemetery at Gettysburg.

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not dedicate - we can not consecrate - we can not hallow - this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, can consecrate it for us above our poor power to do so. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us - that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion.

Abraham Lincoln.

November 19, 1863.
